Raw sewage being dumped into county bayous, rivers; could cause "typhoid...death"

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Down a dirt road in Silver Creek subdivision, children are playing near a trailer the day before school starts. It is mid-August in South Mississippi and very hot. Of course, the kids are bare-footed.

They dart around a PVC pipe that runs from the trailer to adjacent woods, where it spews out raw sewage.

Just down the way, wastewater meanders from a small dug-out along the edge of another residential lot, and winds its way to a county ditch, feeding thick vegetation and filling the air with stench.

On another property, inhabited by a family with children, the PVC sewer line runs from the dwelling to the middle of the yard, spurring filth onto the dusty ground.

These are but three of the estimated one thousand illegal, unhealthy sewer "systems" at work here and there in Hancock County.

And, surprisingly, health officials say Silver Creek is better off than many areas of the county in terms of the land's ability to handle wastewater from the people who inhabit it.

Over in Belle Isle subdivision, health department officials estimate 70 to 80 percent of the sewage disposal schemes are just as bad -- ditches double as sewer lines.

When the vegetation gets too dense to accommodate the sewage, "they call the county to come clean their ditches, because their sewers won't work," says Jim Weston. "Something's bad wrong with a community when you've got to clean the ditches to make the sewers work."

Wastewater drips from a pipe hidden under a bayou boardwalk in Belle Isle, out of sight. Many of the subdivision's residences have malfunctioning septic tank systems, with disposal lines running directly into county ditches or adjacent waterways, state health officials say. (Photo by Jim Weston)

Weston, district supervisor for the state Board of Health, offered to show the Sea Coast Echo examples of the county's wastewater problem south of Interstate 10, where much of the soil is soggy and incapable of accommodating on-site disposal systems. You can strike water by shoving a pole two feet into the earth in some spots. In many cases, lacking a community water system, residents drill shallow wells only a few feet from the malfunctioning septic tanks below the ground. Many of the wells were installed by companies that use water from adjacent, contaminated ditches to cool their drill bits. By the time the well is in use, the contaminated water has gotten in to the drinking water strata.

It would, ultimately, anyway, says Weston, given the scant distance between the wells and septic tanks that serve single properties.

And, meanwhile, "floods generally flush the (septic tanks) into the rivers...All of those solids that have been accumulating for years are flushed right out into the river." If Silver Creek is worrisome, consider Pearllington, a "generally saturated area. There's nowhere for it to go. There are a high number of homes here that have malfunctioning septic tanks."

County budget plays to mixed reviews

BY ED LEPOMA

There was good news and mixed reviews on the $17.1 million budget proposed by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors in a public meeting held Aug. 11.

The good news was that for the third year in a row, all county workers will get a 50 cents an hour increase in pay, and the 1995-96 operating expenditures will be financed without any new increase in taxes.

The mixed reviews were coming from Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and Tourism and Gaming officials who recently joined forces to better promote tourism.

In a joint news conference nearly two weeks ago, Chamber and Tourism and Gaming interests came together to propose a Tourism Development Bureau.

Casino Magic and the Jubilee Casino have agreed to contribute $3,000 each monthly to the new bureau, provided the county comes up with a $3,000 a month match. Bay St. Louis and Waveland has been asked to each contribute $1,500 a month.

In the county's proposed budget, supervisors have only allocated a total $18,000 yearly, half of what was requested.

County Comptroller Patty Greer said supervisors felt they should only have to match what Bay St. Louis and Waveland city governments were asked to contribute.

School board waives tuition for many

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Hancock County School Board trustees made several friends in the Flat Top community Monday night.

The board voted unanimously to waive the 1995-96 school year out-of-district tuition for residents of the Flat Top community in Sections 23 and 24, Township 6 South, Range 16 West. These people, although residents of Hancock County, are in the Picayune city school district.

In 1957, because of transportation logistics difficulties, the Picayune School District agreed to take in a number of students in the northern part of the county. In exchange, the Hancock County School District transferred the land area where those students lived to the Picayune district.

Soon thereafter, NASA moved in and appropriated much of that area as part of its buffer zone, which meant that the families living there had to move.

For instance, much of Section 24, included in the motion made by trustee Larry Peterson, is in the buffer zone. Peterson said he included that section in his motion just in case some of the Section 23 residents lived on the line between the two sections.

Seven parents came to Monday night's meeting to appeal to the board again, as had four parents at the August 7 meeting. Those present Monday were pleased with the school board's action.

Patsy Mansfield said afterward, "We appreciate very much what the board did for us tonight."

Richard Jones added, "This situation's been going on for a long time, and we've been working on it a long time. What happened tonight was good; it was a step in the right direction."

"We live in Hancock County; we love Hancock County; we want our kids to go to school in Hancock County; and we're going to do everything we can to see that they do."

The tuition waiver is just the first step for the parents and the school board. The parents have expressed a desire to be permanently transferred, land and all, back into the Hancock County School District. The board has expressed a similar wish.

Transportation is no longer the problem it was in the late 1950s. Moreover, the land in question includes several tracts of Sixteenth Section land (land set aside by law to provide revenues from leases and timber sales for the school district) which the Hancock district would like to get back quickly, and the Picayune district apparently doesn't want to give up. So far, according to reports from the Hancock school board attorney, Steve Benvenuti, the Picayune district has refused to discuss the matter.

By law the Hancock school board cannot initiate an action to regain the land from the Picayune district. Benvenuti told the parents Monday, "The board and the district cannot actively do anything about getting signatures on a petition to transfer the land back into the district."

Board president Cheryl Bennett added, "Y'all have to be the vehicle for that."

She also told the parents, in answer to a question from one of them, that the school bus can't run into their area to pick up their children, since they still live in the Picayune district.

"All y'all have to do, though, is take them to the nearest bus stop," she said.

Michelle Hume said after the board's vote, "We're going to work very hard to get enough signatures on the petition for the board to be able to go forward with it."

For the board to use it, the petition must have the signatures of at least 50 percent of the registered voters in the section in question, according to Benvenuti.

Apparently, the residents of the Flat Top section in question have been paying taxes to both school districts. They pay car tag taxes to Hancock County, as do Bay St. Louis and Waveland city residents and anyone else living in the county. Part of those revenues goes to the county schools.

However, they say they have been billed by both Hancock County and the Picayune school district on their property taxes.

Jones said, "The board was under the impression that our school taxes were sent to Picayune, but they're not. We get billed separately by that district."

Hume said the board evidently didn't know about this until she brought her tax receipts and showed them to the trustees.

In addition, according to Hancock school superintendent Myrna Bourgeois, the Picayune school tax millage is almost 30 mills higher than the Hancock millage.

Bay officials to shore up seawall

BY MARY G. SEILEY
 Bay St. Louis city officials agreed recently to pay $81,700 to help shore up an eroding section of seawall, and restore some of the property washed away in recent years.

The question of who will ultimately own the re-created lands — the government or private property owners — remains officially unanswered, City Council was told.

Planner Les Fillingame asked for the city cash commitment as a required local match in a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers project estimated to cost $273,000.

Running for 700 feet north of Bay View Court, the project has been in the making for some two years, stemming from a request that private property owners in the area made for help. Some of the property owners, however, later protested having federal or local assistance if that meant that they would lose control over their property lying between Beach Boulevard and the Bay.

Bennett commented after the meeting, "They apparently are being billed twice on the school portion of their homeowner's taxes, by our county and Picayune. That shouldn't be happening."

She added that the tuition waiver, which is only for this school year, "should give the parents an extra incentive to work on this petition so we can try to get them permanently back into the district."

OTHER MATTERS

The school board unanimously approved all but one item on the 32-item consent agenda. The one item, that was not approved was tabled until the board members could see some financial information about the matter.

It concerned the Hawk's Nest day care program run at the v-tech building at Hancock High. The day care is available to school district staff on a first-come, first-served basis, and then open to the public once the school district employees needs are met. Vo-tech students work with a teacher and an aide to receive day care training, and provide a needed service to district employees at the same time.

The fee is currently $35 a week, but the recommendation under consideration would raise the fee to $45 a week, which is still below the cost of most privately run day care centers, according to Bourgeois.

The legal question of property ownership, however, has effectively been set aside for now, Fillingame said. The city is obtaining 25-year easements from the property owners to allow maintenance on the newly constructed shoreline. If the private landowners wish to settle the ownership question fully, they may do so in a legal battle with the state, Fillingame said.

Still, there was some concern expressed during the meeting over the new arrangement — Council President Tad Black said in effect the city is picking up the tab for creating private property.

"We're paying to protect Beach Boulevard," Fillingame answered. The only alternative, he added, is to wait until all the legal battles have been waged and settled.

But officials see the project as an emergency measure, as storm erosion of the shoreline has been dramatic in the past several years. Many officials believe the stability of Beach

Boulevard is in jeopardy because of the continuing erosion.

City attorney Donald Rafferty told council they were on solid legal grounds in chipping into the project, based on the overall public good that it would achieve. "You're not doing it to help one person. You're doing it to help the whole community," said Rafferty.

Hancock County has been the local "sponsor" for three other Corps shoreline protection projects along the seawall, financing the local matching share from seawall tax revenue.

But, he added, city officials didn't foresee winning county funding in time to have the project proceed. (The Board of Supervisors recently agreed to pay $375,000 toward the city's costs of pumping a new beachfront north of Bookter Street from seawall taxes.)

The Bayview project has to be financed and ready to proceed by Sept. 30, or it won't qualify for federal assistance, Fillingame said.

Johnny Longo to be honored

Bay P&Z sets special meeting

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Bay St. Louis Planning and Zoning Commission has set a special meeting for 7:30 p.m. tonight on a proposed bed and breakfast establishment at the former Camp Onward home.

Last week, the commission ended up in a two-two tie over the proposed facility at 972 South Beach Boulevard. Three commissioners missed the meeting.

City officials said they set tonight's session so the commission could send a recommendation on the controversial proposal to City Council for action, rather than an tied opinion of four members.

During a workshop session Monday, commission members said they were shocked and embarrassed by some statements opponents of the proposal made last week. The public hearing on the matter drew a roomful of opponents who applauded and cheered each other as they made their comments.

The commission chairman had to threaten to adjourn the meeting at one point, when members of the audience refused to be orderly.

Another hotly controversial proposal, meanwhile, has been withdrawn from the city's agenda: the developer of a duplex subdivision dropped his request for a subdivision of land off Dunbar near Genin Street.

Last week, developer Ronnie Artigues said unless the city approved the duplex subdivision request immediately, he would scrap those plans and build apartments.

Artigues needed the city's approval for the subdivision, which would have allowed sale of the duplex units. No City Council action is required, however, if "four-plex" apartment buildings are built on the tract. Saying development would worsen drainage problems in their neighborhood, citizens had urged the city to reject the project.

Former Waveland mayor, Johnny Longo will be honored Monday, Aug. 21 at 10 a.m. with the naming of the U.S. Post Office in Waveland after Longo, announced South Mississippi Congressman Gene Taylor, who got an act of Congress to name the facility after the former alderman and mayor.

"Johnny was a great public servant," said Taylor. "His contributions to his community and his love for its people will cause his memory to be forever cherished."

Longo was elected to the Waveland Board of Aldermen in the 1960s. He served three terms as alderman and was then elected mayor for five terms. Under his leadership, the small city of Waveland achieved significant growth and progress.

One of the greatest accomplishments during his tenure was the development and construction of the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District.

During that time Waveland also expanded by annexation, enticed new businesses and helped develop new shopping centers.

Longo felt a city should be run like a business, and he did just that, leaving office in 1990 with the city in good financial shape. He earned a bachelor's degree in business administration from Loyola University and had been a successful businessman himself prior to public service.

His public service also included stints as Civil Defense director, volunteer firefighter and sheriff's deputy. He was a veteran of the U.S. Army and the Merchant Marines. Since his life ended in June of 1992 at the age of 62, Taylor said Longo has been greatly missed.

"He was just a good person," said Taylor. "He was always helping others long after the work day was over — helping with fund raisers, fish fries and with whatever else needed to be done but no one really wanted to do."

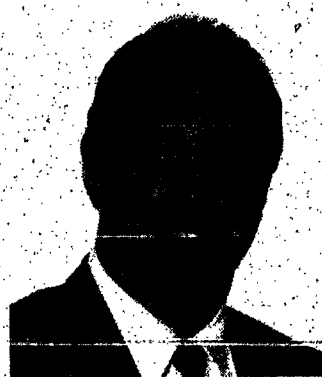

The post office is located at 215 Coleman Avenue.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Two-party system has arrived in Mississippi

There's little doubt anymore that a two-party system has arrived in Mississippi, and the August 8 primary is further evidence of that fact. But state Republican forces seem to be reading more into the primary returns than is warranted.

True, the total vote in the Republican primary was twice what it has ever been in a statewide GOP primary before. However, in terms of numbers — 124,000 cast in the Republican primary and 403,000 in the Democratic primary — it is evident that a whole lot of Mississippians are not ready to abandon the Democratic Party primary system.

In fact, the ratio of slightly over 3 to 1 Democratic votes to Republican votes is not what the recent Mason-Dixon poll had indicated would happen. Their poll used (apparently based on answers of prospective voters) an anticipated ratio of 3 Republican votes being cast for every 4 Democratic votes. Hence, one could read that a lot more folks voted in the Democratic primary than expected from pre-primary surveys.

The fact that Republicans had candidates, and contested races for all state offices on Aug. 8 for the first time, is more indication that the GOP has arrived as a full-fledged political party in state politics.

If, of course, some of the Republicans knock off Democratic incumbents in state office in November, as is possible, that will further make evident the viability of the two-party system at the state political level.

While some latter-day Republicans would hardly think so, this writer has been encouraging a two-party system for several decades. I can document that long ago I started forecasting a major exodus some day of "Mississippi Democrats" to the Republican Party, going back to Barry Goldwater's amazing 87.2 percent of the state's vote in the 1964 presidential race against President Johnson.

That event provided the first real impetus for many white Mississippians to forget why they had hated the name "Republican" going back to the Civil War and Reconstruction.

It also made it socially acceptable to publicly associate with the Republican Party for the first time. In the 1960s when the state GOP first became an organized entity the leadership of the party took on the appearance of being a "country club" party which didn't reach past Main Street business people and had committees in only a small number of counties.

But with their effective fundraising from a few well-heeled givers a good state central party mechanism started gradually developing local organizations from county to county. All the while, state Democrats either squabbled among themselves or did nothing to keep viable organizations at the state or local level.

The GOP also took on the cast of a "white man's party" and when Lyndon Johnson signed the 1965 Voting Rights Act, enfranchising thousands of blacks, the movement of whites from the Democratic ranks began in earnest. By 1972, when Republicans won two of Mississippi's five seats in the U.S. House, it became obvious Mississippi Republicans than had political clout.

The big breakthrough of electing Republicans to state office came in 1991 with the election of both a GOP governor and lieutenant governor. Conversion of Democrats in the Legislature to the Republican ranks has come in trickles for 20 years, to reach 26 percent of the Legislature in 1995.

However, chances that Republicans will win a majority of either, or both of the state legislative chambers this November, as the GOP has done in several other Dixie states, appear slim according to experienced legislative observers.

Last week after this showdown race with Dick Molpus began, Fordice put out a letter soliciting contributions to beat the "liberal" Dick Molpus. Obviously, "liberal" will be the favorite moniker Fordice is going to try to hand on Molpus. Still later it can be expected that Fordice will be out trying to also hand Bill Clinton on Molpus' neck in any obtuse way he can.

The Fordice letter used the word "liberal" 13 times in regard to Mississippi Democrats, even charging that "liberal" Democrats had been running the governor's office for 100 years before he was elected.

My, oh my, if the 10 Democratic governors I have known and covered were tax-happy, free-spending liberals, as Fordice says, then I must have been awfully hoodwinked. Even Ray Mabus, who had some liberal credentials on social issues, was so tight-fisted fiscally that he would not go along with a tax hike that was essential to get his BEST education program started.

Obviously, Fordice either knows or cares nothing about the political history of this state, which since the Great Depression has struggled to build a stable governmental system that can provide services needed to maintain decent living conditions, raise educational levels, and hopefully raise the quality of life.

I wonder if Fordice thought that when Mike Conner enacted a 2-cent gross state sales tax in 1932 it was a "liberal" excess, since it proved to be a saving grace in yanking the state out of bankruptcy, making it possible to pay school teachers and state workers.

Or was it "liberal" when former businessman Gov. High White pushed through taxes in 1954-55 to fund the Minimum Foundation education program which equalized grossly unequal white and black teacher salaries, replaced hundreds of one and two-room school houses with decent buildings, and consolidated 1,500 school districts into 150?

Some fair-weather Mississippi Democrats, who for years reaped benefits from being elected as Democrats, are apparently trying to get in on the Republican title surge. Ex-Lt. Gov. Brad Dye, who recently has been out plugging Fordice (and gave him $1,000) is a prime case.

Not only did Dye take with him a huge cache of unspent campaign funds — maybe $400,000 — when he was retired by the voters in 1991, he is one of the few supposed Democrats in the state who has gotten a piece of patronage from President Clinton.

Dye was put on the Federal Home Loan Bank Board of Dallas, a spot requiring little time, but paying a fat per diem when it meets each month.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

'Bed and Breakfast' offers ambience

Dear Editor:

Congratulations on your fine news coverage and editorial in the Aug. 13 issue on the controversy over a "Bed and Breakfast" at the former Camp Onward on South Beach between Ramoneda and Bay Oaks.

The essence of a B and B is offering travelers a quiet, residential ambience away from the Congress' foreign policy role on wrong track

On Aug. 1 the House overwhelmingly passed legislation terminating the arms embargo against Bosnia's Muslims, it made a grave mistake. For more than a year, Congress has passed bills requiring the President to unilaterally end the embargo.

On previous occasions, lawmakers seemed content knowing their votes could be reversed at a later stage in the legislative process — not so this time.

Passage by the House sent the measure directly to the President, who has consistently threatened a veto. When the bill is kicked back to Congress the debate will no longer be about political posturing, but actually making U.S. policy.

There are 298 members of the House who are anxious to get America involved in a war where we don't belong. Our nation's interests aren't at stake. Our nation is not under attack. Yes, people are dying, but I don't think it is America's business to take sides. People say that if we just lift the embargo the war will go away.

Whom are we kidding? According to the former Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Colin Powell, there is a ten-year supply of weapons in the former Yugoslavia. During the Cold War President Tito was not only paranoid about an attack from NATO, but also from the Warsaw Pact.

This blood feud has been going on since at least the 1400's. Soon after Canadian Major General Lewis MacKenzie returned from the region as the U.N. Commander he said, "Dealing with Bosnia is a little like dealing with three serial killers. One has killed 15. One has killed 10. One has killed five. Do we help the one that has only killed five? I don't see the rational in jumping in to help the one who has killed only five."

If we lift the embargo, to what group do we sell our arms? Are we going to sell to the Serbs? Are we going to sell to the Croats? No, Congress wants to sell arms to the Muslims.

Congress wants to take sides. When you pick sides it means that U.S. Armed Forces have to train people. When those people we have trained invariably lose, the American people will have to make the decision as to whether we send American troops in for a rescue.

Not with my kids. Not with kids from South Mississippi. Not with kids who have no reason to die in Bosnia.

Our nation is already engaged in four operations related to the war in Bosnia. Our Navy is taking part in operation Sharp Guard, which enforces the arms embargo from the Adriatic Sea. Operation Able Sentry includes 550 American troops in Macedonia to halt the spread of the war to that region. Humanitarian relief is airlifted into Bosnia by Air Force C-130's through operation Provide Promise.

Finally, Air Force, Navy and Marine pilots and aviators fly sorties to enforce the no-fly zone over Bosnia in operation Deny Flight.

Air Force Captain Scott O'Grady was flying such a mission when he was shot down. While we all cheered his safe rescue, his harrowing experience shows just how dangerous Bosnia is for our forces.

We must continue to work with our allies to confine this conflict to the former Yugoslavians. In that objective, we have been very successful. In order for this war to end, the Serbs, the Croats and Muslims must believe that it is in their best interest to establish a lasting peace. Until all sides reach such a peace agreement, it will be impossible for the fighting to stop.

It would be a grave mistake to squander the lives of Americans for a hopeless war in a part of the world we don't belong. Years later, when Congress conducts hearings into why our young sons and daughters were sent to die in Bosnia, we will have only ourselves to blame.

"CUEVAS' QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

I was released from Hancock Medical Center Wednesday morning.

I am now in "Jane's hospital" for the next two weeks as I recover from surgery. I ended up in surgery twice. I will have to take it easy for awhile while everything mends.

This is the longest I have ever been hospitalized, and hope it will be a long time — or possibly never again — to be in a bed for 25 days in a row.

I can't find enough words to tell you about the fine professional care I received my entire stay at Hancock Medical Center.

This goes from the emergency room, X-ray, surgery, anesthesiology, intensive care, nursing, auxiliary, housekeeping, administration, and most important, to the dietitian when I was given the go-ahead to eat after 18 days of ice only.

As I mentioned Sunday, I was a real sick puppy for several days.

I want to once again thank all my well-wishers for their concern. It is good to have so many friends when you are flat on your back.

As I write this, I await breakfast, which will be my last meal as a patient at HMC.

I wonder if "Jane's hospital" will offer me as many selections on my meals.

I hope to be in touch with you once again on Sunday.

A Yes. (Sections 19-3-42(4) and 65-7-74)

Q Shall the levying authority levy an additional amount sufficient to cover anticipated delin-

A Yes. (Section 37-57-105)

Q May a board of education conduct a 16th section timber sale and place the total proceeds from such sale in the forestry escrow fund for use by the Forestry Commission?

A Yes. (Section 29-3-45 and 29-3-47)

Q If more than 15 percent of a timber sale is placed in the forestry escrow fund, will equity funding be affected?

A If the excess amount placed in the escrow fund meets the requirements of Section 29-3-47, equity funding should not be affected.

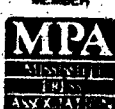

We recommend that you contact Ralph McDonald of the State Department of Education at 359-3525 for suggestions on how to notify his office that the excess meets the requirements.

Lawyer's request to be considered

BY ED LEPOMA
 Pass Christian citizens might soon know whether the Board of Aldermen will entertain Mayor Ted Lawyer's request to extend his resignation to Sept. 29.

It was a feisty Mayor Lawyer who pounded the gavel at City Hall Tuesday to convene a special session he had called to consider his term extension request. The chamber was about three-quarters full. Some were city officials or guests who had business to discuss, but others seemed to be in the audience out of sheer curiosity; anxious for a public fight between the beleaguered mayor and the governing aldermen.

Lawyer called the meeting to order, and City Clerk Vikki Goff called the roll. Aldermen Antoine, Rogers, Kalif and Bodenschatz answered present, but Ward 1 Alderman Jeff Emerson wasn't occupying his chair behind the desk.

"Let the record show Mr. Emerson's absent," Lawyer instructed the clerk. "He's got to be here when the meeting starts."

Emerson calmly walked up to take his chair behind the desk, and asked the clerk to record him as present.

At the top of the agenda, was Lawyer's proposal to extend his resignation until Sept. 29. Originally, Lawyer was scheduled to resign on medical disability Aug. 30.

Lawyer said he wanted to stay on the job because he expects the Henderson Point-Pass Christian Isles annexation suit to be settled next month, and because of some paperwork delays associated with his retirement claim.

The mayor's request was expected to be discussed behind closed doors in executive session, but Lawyer said he didn't want to discuss that issue.

"I want to discuss contributions that are not going into the retirement fund."

There was some heckling from the audience, and Lawyer threatened to throw the noisy ones out.

"I'm running this meeting," the mayor said.

Ward 3 Alderman Antoine seconded the mayor's motion to expand the conversation to include Lawyer's accusations, but it died for lack of a second.

Emerson pointed out that only the motion outlined in the agenda could be discussed, unless the entire Board of Aldermen allowed it.

Lawyer got up and stood briefly behind his chair.

"Maybe I ought to let Mayor Antoine take over, he said.

The suggestion drew applause from the audience.

The mayor sat down in his chair again after City Attorney Malcolm Jones agreed with Emerson that the agenda could not be amended unless the entire Board of Aldermen agreed.

"We'll just have to call another special meeting," Lawyer threatened.

With that, Lawyer sat down and began going through items on the agenda.

Stay tuned.

Waveland denied funding

Waveland did not receive funding for its two HOME applications for grant funds for new construction or housing rehabilitation for the city.

"According to the Department of Economic and Community Development, HOME funds were extremely competitive again this year. They may continue funding from the FY95 list of applicants with FY96 HOME funds should these funds be made available to the state," said Mayor John Mason.

"Waveland has received more than $400,000 in public facilities improvements through the department this year, so all was not lost," the mayor said.

The city will continue to apply for home improvement funding, he said. City staffers are continuing to document need and searching for alternative funding sources.

IN AND AROUND DIAMONDHEAD

By Margaret Williamson

IDEAS NEEDED

Brenda need ideas and input in renaming the old Coral Room at the country club since the colors are changing.

The raised area in the back of the room has been leveled to the main floor. The rock has been removed from the old bandstand area, and the slab for the new area will be poured shortly.

Everyone is looking forward to the completion of the renovation, so it will be ready for all of the upcoming fall activities.

Start planning your Labor Day weekend now and Leon Kerner's orchestra for the dance on Saturday, Sept. 9.

Don't forget Karaoke Fun Friday nights from 7-11 in the Terrace Room where you can also dance. Come out and support your country club.

head since 1991.

He will be responsible for customer service, which will include, but is not limited to, working with clubs, committees and organization in the community, and will serve as the primary contact for members with questions and problems.

As you can see, David is going to be a very busy man. Stop by the POA office and say hello.

SPCA OF D'HEAD

Helen Wise writes in the newsletter that at the June 26 meeting there was a re-election of the officers and board members to another term.

Country club renovations

The old adage "if it ain't broke, don't fix it" seems to apply here.

We are all grateful to those who sacrifice their time, efforts and ingenuities for the cause of our SPCA.

At their last dinner meeting the Diamondhead Community Association presented its Very Special Person Award to Mrs. George (Frances) Pike, who has devoted her life to the SPCA cause.

YACHT CLUB'S NEW HOSTS

The ad in the newsletter reads: Same great food! Same best view on the Coast. Come meet your new hosts.

Last Tuesday evening the yacht club's doors opened to members of the POA board, committees, and their spouses as guests of two of the three owners of the company, who now own the yacht club lease, Sam McDonald and Bobbie Ragsdale. A buffet offered samples of their chef's specialties, and a wonderful time was had by all who attended.

THOUGHTS TO SHARE

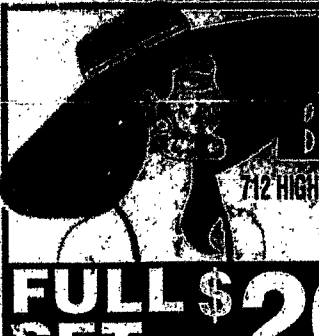

You may have heard of the Tate family. They're in every organization. This is Dic Tate who wants to run everything. Ro Tate is always trying to change things. Agi Tate stirs up trouble whenever possible with the help of Irri Tate.

Hesi Tate and Vege Tate are there to say they can't possibly work, but are more than willing to watch everybody else.

Steppin' Out to perform at Nereids dance

Laurin Munsch and Steppin' Out will provide the entertainment for the Krewe of Nereids Annual Fish Fry and Dance Aug. 19.

For a donation of $12.50 one can hear the smooth sounds of this popular rhythm and blues band at the Hancock County Civic Center on Longfellow Road from 9 p.m.-1 a.m. All proceeds help the krewe sponsor its Mardi Gras parade in the Bay-Waveland area each year.

Munsch, a vocalist, has been paying his dues in the music world for the past 25 years. He's finally reaping the rewards with non-stop bookings at New Orleans area hotels and nightclubs and lately at casinos on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

One of ten kids, Munsch reminisces about the time his father once sang with Ted Lewis at the Blue Room in New Orleans. Lewis was impressed enough with his voice to invite Munsch's father to return with him to New York, but his father turned him down.

Perhaps it was that early impression of his father's musical gifts that inspired Munsch to seek a musical career for himself.

By 1969, when he heard Clarence Frogman Henry at L'Enfants on Canal Blvd., he had already determined he could and would try to become successful in music.

His career has taken him to Las Vegas and San Antonio, but most often to Chicago and venues on the East Coast. In 1986, out of a field of 350 contestants, he won the first annual Las Vegas National Talent Search.

Munsch has gone on to a variety of radio and television appearances, including ESPN boxing events and the new Amateur Hour, a national television show. Most recently, he opened for Chubby Checker and recorded a remake of the Platters' "Only You" with "Let's Go Get Crazy" on the flip side. Munsch is currently in the process of recording an album of New Orleans R & B Classics.

Budget

and Gaming Commission Director, appeared at the public hearing and asked supervisors to no avail to reconsider and make the $3,000 a month appropriation.

"My concern is that we would not have enough money to adequately staff the new bureau and to attract a fulltime executive director," Henrie said. "I'm also concerned that the casinos' agreement to cooperate in this new venture was predicated on getting full funding from the county."

Cindy Vernon, director of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, was happy to get the promise of support from the County Board of Supervisors.

"While this wasn't quite what we had hoped for, we are pleased with this support and anticipate support in the future," she said.

Vernon noted that actual formation of the Tourism Development Bureau has been delayed due to the illness of Chamber President and Sea Coast Echo Publisher, Ellis Cuevas.

The Chairman of the Board would be selected by Cuevas, and the board would be governed by a separate Tourism Board of Directors, consisting of three to nine members. Those directors would be selected from the Chamber membership.

"We haven't made any formal requests for funding to any of the municipalities as yet," Vernon said. "Until (Cuevas) gets out of the hospital, I don't know if we will pursue it any further, but a lot of groundwork can be done before we look for a full-time staff."

Vernon said the appropriation was $15,000 more than he had before.

Tourism and Gaming President Bill Lady said his organization, the casinos and chamber officials carefully estimated what it might cost to successfully operate the new Tourism Development Bureau, and any cut in funding may jeopardize its effectiveness.

"While I appreciate (the supervisors) are giving us something, I hope the cut in funding doesn't set a precedent," he said. "We have to have a full-time director to make this thing work."

Lady, who also co-owns Waveland's Resort Inn, said the forces to create the new Tourism Bureau would probably wait until after the September elections to renew efforts for increased funding.

"And, if that fails, we may go to the casinos to drum up more support from them or to the state legislature to request some kind of new millage to support it."

The pay raise for the approximately 200 county workers will cost around $280,000, Greer said.

Other proposed expenditures in the budget include a special one-time appropriation of $10,000 for the Women's Center to be constructed in Biloxi.

Another $15,000 is proposed for Hope Haven, the home in Bay St. Louis that is being converted to house abused and neglected children.

The Seniors Center would receive a $3,000 increase in the proposed budget and The Child Development Center a $5,500 increase. Greer said these increases were needed to offset recent cuts in federal funding for certain programs operated by the centers.

Another public hearing on the proposed budget is scheduled for 10 a.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 5. The public is invited to attend the session, scheduled in the Board Room of the Hancock County Courthouse, 150 Main Street in Bay St. Louis.

Military government to expand technology

BY RICHARD MEEK

The military and government are joining forces to expand technology into not only Mississippi's private and public sectors, but world marketplaces as well, according to an agreement signed recently by Governor Kirk Fordice and Rear Admiral Paul Gaffney II, at the Naval Meteorology and Oceanography Command at Stennis.

Officials said the purpose of the agreement is to develop and apply advanced technology for the world marketplaces in addition to transferring existing Navy technology into Mississippi private and public sector.

"This is a memorable day for us," Gaffney said. "This agreement is a commitment to technological and educational partnership."

Fordice said the agreement is a "trade of technology" and will enhance economic growth in Mississippi.

Under the terms of the agreement, the State of Mississippi, through the Mississippi Enterprise for Technology at SSC, will promote development programs enhancing awareness of meteorology and oceanography in elementary and secondary schools, as well as junior and community colleges.

The state will also provide planning and implementation support for the supercomputer center and support new mutual programs through the Center of Higher Learning and the Mississippi Enterprise for Technology.

The Navy will provide technology transfer information and literature to state organizations serving Mississippi industry and help develop proposals, plan programs and exchange information supporting joint academic and technology training enhancement projects.

New gaming association formed

Casinos from throughout Mississippi have formed a statewide association, the Mississippi Gaming Association (MGA), to deal with issues of common interest to the industry.

The casino industry, just three years old in Mississippi, currently has over 25,300 employees. State Tax Commission figures show $1.6 billion in gross gaming revenues for the 12 months ended June 30. Tax revenues from gaming during the same period were over $189 million.

Senior executives from Mis-issippi's 28 casinos say the association will address statewide issues and concerns. The three existing regional casino operators associations will continue to deal with issues of regional and local interest.

The regional organizations are the Mississippi Casino Operators Association (MCOA), on the Gulf Coast, the Central Casino Operators, and the Tunica Casino Operators Association.

The new organization has elected a seven-member board of directors, with two representatives from each of the three regions. Roger Derby, general manager of the Isle of Capri Vicksburg, was elected chairman.

Board members are Doug Pattison, Sheraton Casino, Tunica; Joe Fuscaldo, Sam's Town Hotel & Gambling Hall, Tunica; Jack Newton, Las Vegas Casino, Greenville; Lee Witherow, Harrah's Vicksburg; Jack Barratt, Casino Magic-Biloxi; and Jon Turner, Bayou Caddy's Jubilee Casino, Lakeshore.

The organization has selected a six-man committee to address the issue of problem gambling.

"The casino industry will assume a leadership role in identifying the extent of problem gambling in Mississippi, establishing an organization to deal with the issue, and educating the public on this important matter, chairman Derby said.

Five casino executives participated in a Public Policy Think Tank on compulsive gambling, June 1-2, at the University of Southern Mississippi, Gulf Park, in Long Beach. Think Tank members are continuing the development of recommendations for a statewide policy and program on problem gambling.

Derby said other matters to be addressed by the casino association will be identified in the group's first general meeting Aug. 22 in Jackson.

"We look forward to a full and active membership of casinos and a strong and productive organization," Derby said.

For additional information contact Roger Derby at 1-800-946-4753 or (601) 630-4301.

'Robbery' provides training for S.W.A.T. team

STORY AND PHOTOS BY RICHARD MEEK

An early sun was rising over Bay St. Louis Saturday morning as five armed gunmen entered Hancock Bank and took hostages.

Bank vice-president Jerry Heitzman was handcuffed, shot in the knees and had his mouth taped. Before it was over, two would lie dead, one hostage, and one of the armed men, felled by a bullet from one of his own gang.

Fortunately, however, this scenario was fiction, a practice run for the Hancock County S.W.A.T. team in case fable becomes fact.

"I think our guys did one heck of a job," said Matt Karl, S.W.A.T. team Top Commander. "It went off great."

The scenario began early Saturday when members of the Harahan, La., Police Department, posing as armed gunmen, burst into the bank and took several hostages, played by bank volunteers. Not long after, the S.W.A.T. team, which is made up of officers from the Bay St. Louis and Waveland police departments and Hancock County Sheriff's Department deputies, had the area cardoned off.

Camouflaged sharpshooters Phil Johnson and Tim Browder, who came in on jet skis, had taken positions on rooftops overlooking the bank. Chief negotiator Rita Watson soon established contact with the gunmen.

To add to the drama, Karl said the "bad guys" did not know what tactics S.W.A.T. members would employ, and vice versa. On several occasions, a gunman stepped out of the building, ordering police to leave. He even paraded hostages outside on two occasions, and with a hostage in front of him, shot one of his own gang.

After about 90 minutes, the S.W.A.T. team created a diversion in the back of the bank and stormed the front. Karl said although shots were "fired" (the guns were real but had no ammunition), no one else was injured, and all of the gunmen were taken alive.

"It was a great success, although we did have little problems and little mistakes (one of the S.W.A.T. members was captured early in the exercise)," Karl said. "There are some things we have to brush up on."

"They were small things but could become big things."

Karl said the bank entry was "out of sight. It was outstanding."

Even the Harahan police officers, who are also S.W.A.T. members, had high marks for his officers, according to Karl. "The Harahan officers felt everything went down great," he said. "Some parts were outstanding."

Even though it was make-believe, Heitzman said being a hostage gave him a "greater appreciation for those who would have to go through it."

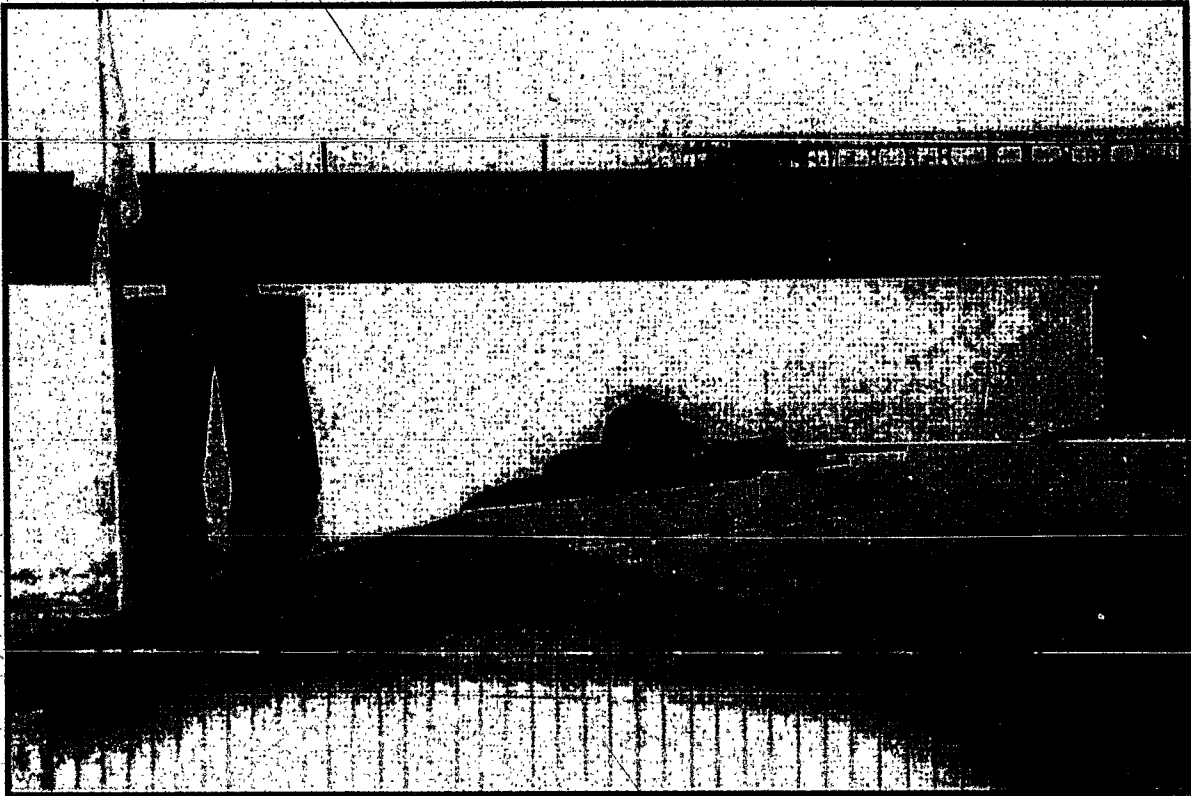

He said the scenario also proved beneficial for his own employees.

"We are trained to cooperate with the perpetrators and get them out of the bank as soon as possible," he said.

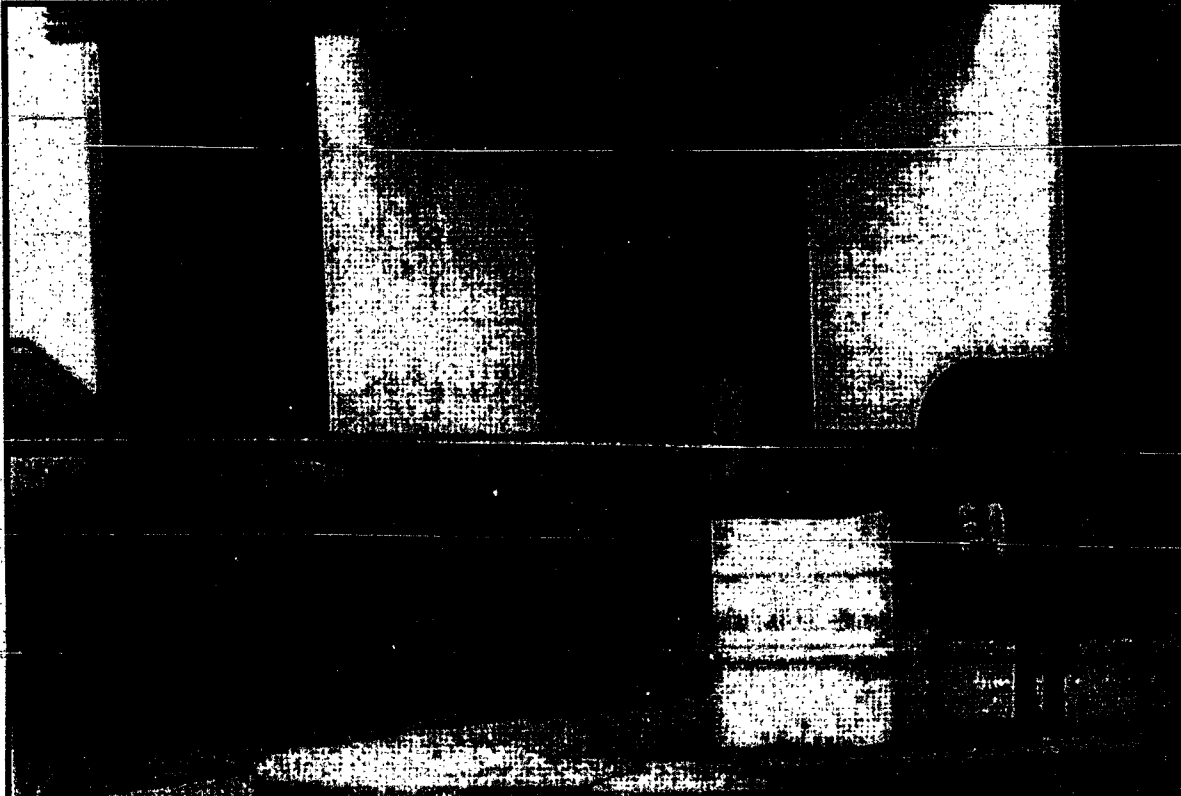

Heitzman said when S.W.A.T. members enter the bank, employees are trained "to hit the floor and get behind something."

He also had high praise for the officers for the "way in which they deceived the perps."

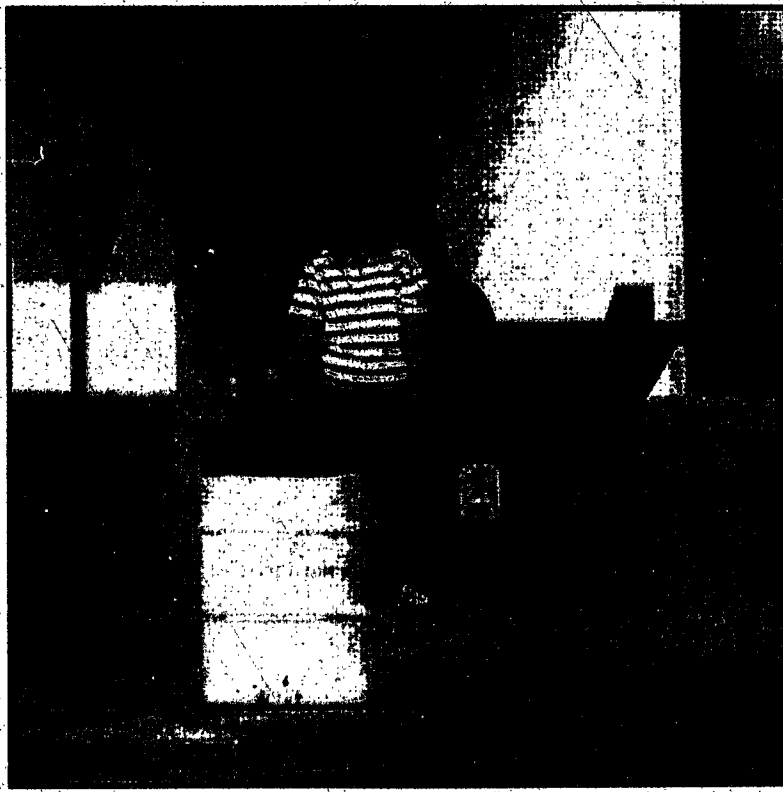

"They did a great job," he said.

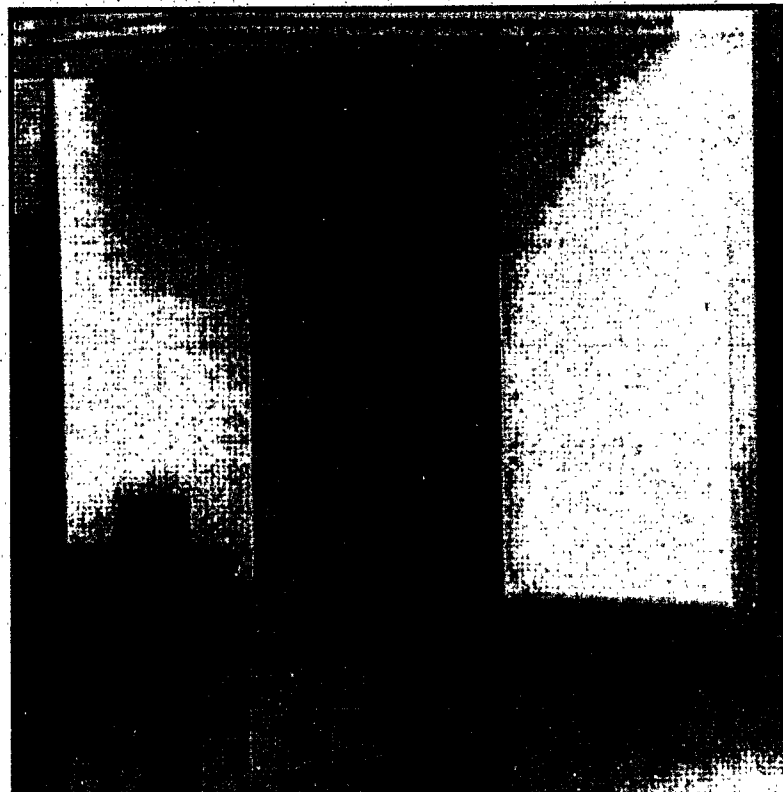

Sharpshooter Phil Johnson took a spot on a rooftop across the street.

"Hostage" Kay Karl retrieves coffee gained through negotiations.

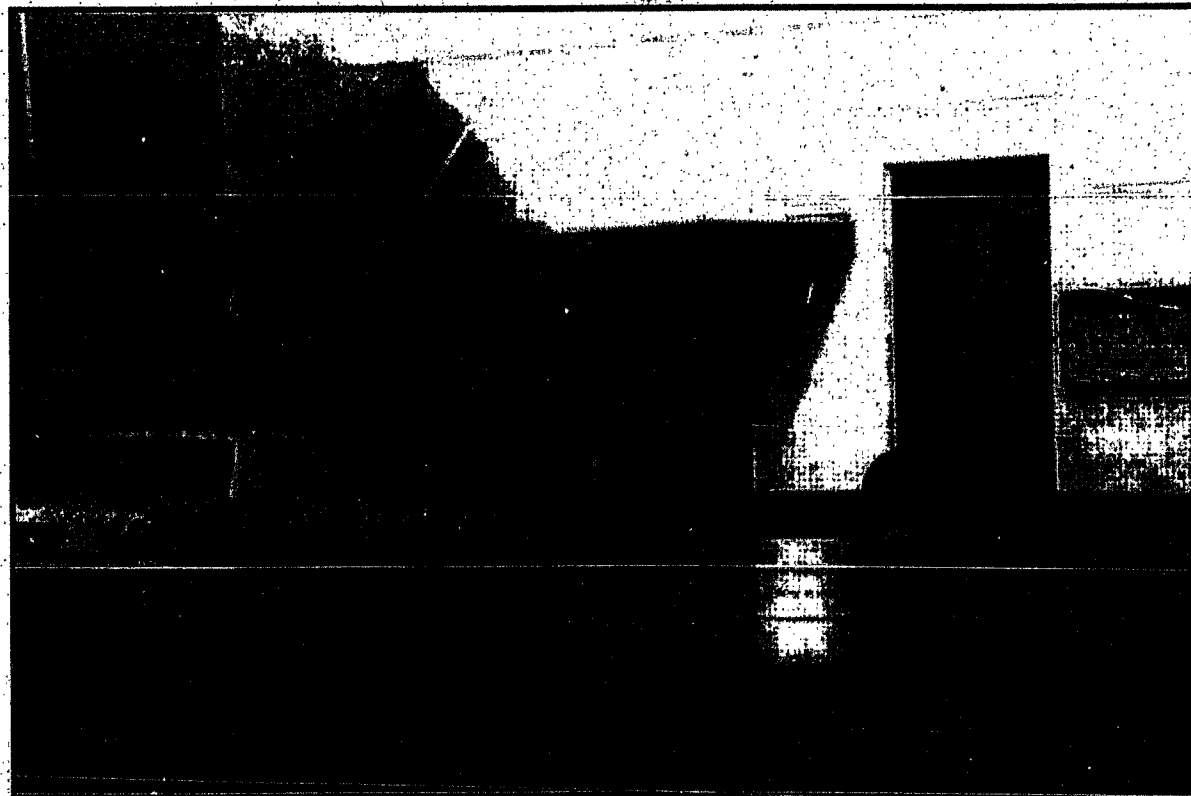

A "gunman" parades hostage Michelle Ellis in front of the bank.

The "gunman" instructs police to leave the area.

Sharpshooter Tim Browder takes aim at the bank.

An explosion and a smoke bomb helped create a diversion for S.W.A.T. members to enter the building.

Concrete recycled for better fishing

Some 15,000 tons of concrete rip rap that was destined for a land fill will be put to work for South Mississippi fishermen instead, according to South Mississippi Congressman Gene Taylor.

Taylor said one plan for the rip rap is the creation of low-profile near-shore fishing reefs. The reefs, which would be located within the half-mile limit and out of commercial zones, would be beneficial to both commercial and recreational fishermen.

"The advantages are endless," said Taylor, an avid salt-water fisherman. "With the citizens and local government reaping the benefits."

The underwater rip rap would provide food and cover, creating a habitat to attract a diverse group of marine life and a spawning ground for the marine life. Hancock County should be the first coastal county to benefit from the reefs.

Permits were applied for in all three coastal counties, but Hancock County was first to get a green light because of holes created by the recent dredging near Bayou Caddy.

State funds from the Public Trust Tideland's fund will go to the Commission on the Marine Resources to be used for projects such as this. The tideland's fund includes revenues from lease rentals of tidelands and submerged lands, which include barges and casinos, not private tax dollars.

Once the rip rap is moved to its new home, markings and charts would designate the area of covered rocks where the bottom can be seen up to a couple of feet.

"After four years, we're one step away from making this project a reality," said Taylor, who has been working with the help of local and state agencies.

The project began when the Gulf Coast Conservation Association (GCCA) contacted Taylor about the available rip rap from the replacement of an apron at the Air National Guard Base in Gulfport.

Also, Mississippi Gulf Coast Fishing Banks continue to play a key roll in pushing for the reefs. The rip rap is being housed by the Harrison County Development Commission on the Industrial Seaway in Gulfport.

Final reef fish rules to be adopted

The Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council will take final action in the adoption of proposed federal rules regulating reef fish during its meeting of Sept. 18-21 at the Broadwater Beach Resort.

When the Council reviewed Reef Fish Amendment 11 at the May meeting, it did not have time to decide on all of the issues in the amendment. Those items that have been rolled over into a new Amendment 12 for final action are: commercial reef fish harvest by shrimp vessels, definition of bait, personal consumption limit, dealer transport requirement, bag limit on commercial vessels, amberjack size and bag limits and Florida compatible season closures, gag and black grouper size limits, red snapper minimum size limits, and aggregate recreational bag limit for reef fish.

Public testimony is scheduled to begin at 8:45 a.m. on Sept. 20. Persons testifying must turn in registration cards before the start of the testimony period. Copies of Amendment 12 are available from the Council office. Also, written comments will be accepted until Sept. 4.

The Reef Fish Management Committee meeting at 1 p.m. Sept. 13 will develop recommendations to the Council on Amendment 12. The Shrimp Management Committee meeting at 9 a.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 19 will hear scientific reports on the current status of development of bycatch reduction devices (BRDs) for shrimp trawls.

Information will include reduction levels of finfish bycatch and shrimp retention levels of each type of BRD.

Other committees meeting to hear reports include Habitat Protection, Data Collection Stone Crab and Spiny Lobster.

Waters to open

The Mississippi Department of Marine Resources announces, after conducting sampling, that certain waters not opened previously to recreational and commercial shrimping have been declared open as of 6 a.m. Aug. 16.

This area includes all waters south and west of a line beginning at Beacon 18 in the Biloxi Bay Channel, then runs northwesterly to Beacon 22 in the

A copy of the agenda can be obtained by calling 813-228-2815. All sessions of the meeting are open to the public. This meeting is physically accessible to people with disabilities. Requests for sign language interpretation or other auxiliary aids should be directed to the Council office by Sept. 11.

Biloxi Bay Channel, then northwesterly to Beacon 26 in the Biloxi Bay Channel, then westerly to Beacon 34 exclusive of the Biloxi Channel itself, then westerly to Beacon 30 in the Biloxi Channel, exclusive of the Biloxi Channel itself, and then south to the point on Deer Island.

This order will take effect and be in force from and after 6 a.m. on Aug. 16.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

It's time to go fishin' y'all. The Turtle spent some time at the Aquarium of the Americas in New Orleans this past week with his grandturtle Andrew. It was quite an educational experience. There is no question some of the learned scientific discoveries seen at the aquarium have good application to use by the fishin' buddies along the Gulf Coast.

For example, scientists have discovered that sharks and sting rays have a far better developed sense of smell than human beings, and certain smells are strongly repellent to them. This means all of the fishin' buddies with children at home already have the most potent shark and ray repellent known to man.

Just think how badly a sting ray's sense of smell would be offended if you were to wear a pair of tennis shoes your kids have kept in their gym locker for a few months. No self-respecting sting ray will stay in the same water as a person wearing the smelly gym shoes of their children.

There is one special room at the aquarium that is set up so you can pet sharks. Bet the fishin' buddies didn't know sharks like to be scratched with two fingers just behind their dorsal fin.

The sharks that were presented by the aquarium keepers to be scratched were just over a foot long. I think just scratching the sharks with only two fingers has something to do with keeping the other three fingers available so you will still have three of your five fingers available if the shark decides to make a meal out of the other two.

As you enter the aquarium you pass through a glass-like tunnel and are surrounded by fish. It is almost like you are in the water with the fish without getting wet. It is really wild to be looking eye to eye with sharks, huge red fish and other finny creatures.

The Turtle strongly recommends a trip to the Aquarium of the Americas for a couple of hours of family fun. By the way, the aquarium building is air conditioned.

The Sportsman Club Kids Fishing Rodeo was this past Saturday. Rodeo headquarters was once again in front of the American Legion Pier on the concrete slab by Beach Boulevard. As it has been for at least the past 11 years the rodeo was once again a resounding success with 424 kids registering to participate.

At one time during the day it was standing room only on the American Legion Pier. The only problem was the fish were not in a cooperative mood.

The fish were offered live shrimp, dead shrimp, artificial baits and old socks, all to almost no avail. In other words, the fish were not "bitin' too good."

Did I say old socks for bait? Maybe that's what happened to the fish, the smell of the old socks ran the fish off and otherwise ruined their appetites. I guess the only fish caught had sinus trouble and could not smell the old socks.

After a very busy day of fishing the scales closed at 5 p.m. with a long line of proud kids waiting to register their catch. And register they did.

Some 270 kids entered their catch in the rodeo. They entered everything from perch that weighed at least 2 or 3 ounces to some really big drum fish.

The kids carried their catches to the weighmaster in everything from ice chests to stringers, to empty coke cartons to bare hands.

Several young contestants entered their catch of crabs in Coke cartons and released them back into the water right after the crabs were weighed. It is good to see the youngsters practicing conservation at such an early age.

Top award at the rodeo went to Queen Fisher Ashley Rutherford and King Fisherman Jason Hanson.

Before I close out this week I gotta mention the fishin' for flounders along the seawall has been super good. The way you fish for the flat fish along the seawall is to walk slowly along the bottom step while bouncing a green or clear sparkle beetle along the bottom right next to the seawall. The best spot has been right in front of Buccaneer State Park.

This week's wonderful wise words: You will need large quantities of deodorizer spray if you carry your gym socks in your car as sting ray repellent.

Do full-year gym shoes smell more better than full-year gym socks, Turtle?

Analyzing water often the key to finding bass

Bassin' with the pros

"Catching bass isn't really the difficult part. What's hard is finding them, and the best way we've learned to do that is by analyzing the water."

So says Larry Nixon, a former guide, winner of more than $1 million in professional tournament prizes, and a member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff. Among his peers, he is considered one of the best at locating bass on large reservoirs.

"There are many things to consider when you analyze water," he says, "and these things can actually change during a day. Your mind has to act like a computer, constantly considering input about the conditions you're fishing."

Among the most important factors Nixon considers when he is analyzing water are clarity, depth, cover, and the shoreline.

"The shoreline or the banks are especially important," he says, "because the more irregularities along that shore, the more likely bass will be using it. Bass do not utilize straight, featureless banks unless that is all that's available."

"They prefer cuts, points, riprap, logs, culverts, nearby creek bends, stumps, changes in rock, anything that changes or is different from its surroundings, and the more variety of things you can find, the better your chances of locating bass."

A major reason irregular shorelines are important to bass is because they're also important to baitfish, continues the Evinrude pro. Practically all freshwater baitfish are shallow water oriented because they find both food and shelter in the nooks and crannies of an irregular bank.

"And, as every bass fisherman knows, when baitfish are present in an area, bass are not far behind," smiles Nixon.

The Arkansas angler also believes water clarity is an important consideration when looking for bass.

"When water is dingy or murky, bass will be more shallow, but in clear water the fish will be deeper, and they won't be around the shorelines unless there is abundant cover, such as heavy vegetation or a lot of logs and brush," says Nixon.

Another thing Nixon cautions anglers to be aware of during the warm weather months is what is known as an algae bloom. This is when plankton reproduces and becomes so thick the water changes to a deep greenish color and has what appears to be sediment floating in it.

"A certain amount of algae or plankton is necessary to support the food chain for baitfish," explains Nixon, "but when too much plankton is present, it's usually time to move to a different part of the lake because fishing won't be that good there."

The arrangement was made through the African-American Institute's South African Black Universities Faculty Skills Enhancement Program. The program seeks to help South Africa's historically disadvantaged universities develop human and institutional resources by providing short-term training, research and skills enhancement opportunities in the United States for black South African junior faculty and mid-level administrators.

USM will provide institutional resources, including mentoring and class auditing, said Dr. Mark Miller, associate dean of the college. CCED will serve as Nethengwe's research base.

Beach cleanup Sept. 16

Volunteers are asked to "Make a Clean Splash" by signing up for the annual beach cleanup slated for Sept. 16. Participants will clean Gulf Coast beaches, islands, waterways and boat ramps in a war on litter.

The cleanup is coordinated by the Mississippi Marine Trash Task Force who hope this year's number of volunteers will top 1994's turnout of 2,490 participants. All three coastal counties and the islands are included in the effort.

"Trash on beaches and in waterways threatens the beauty and environmental health of the coastal area," said task force chairman Kay Baltar. "Let's work together to have a better Gulf Coast."

Special incentives will be offered to volunteers through the generosity of sponsors, including Chevron, Pepsi, Outback Steak House, Ship Island Excursions, Pizza Hut, Mississippi Power, the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and others.

The number to call is Hancock County is 467-9048.

Borrowing possessions can strain friendship

By Dr. Ann Jarrett
418 South Main Street
Cooper's Book and Stationery Service

"I have a friend who will ask to borrow anything he sees that he likes. It may be a new shirt you're wearing for the first time, something old that he hasn't thought to ask about before, or it might be an expensive watch you just got for your birthday. It could even be class notes before a big test. It doesn't matter to him.

"The worst part about all of this is that he never remembers to return anything. If you remind him that you need something back, he gets mad and acts like you're a jerk for asking.

"If he ever does return an item, it's usually ruined, or at least messed up. I've about had it with him even though he's a good guy except for this bad habit. Should I just accept him for what he is or write him off as a friend?"

Only you can answer that.

You must like him if you're taking the time and energy to write and ask what to do about him. You said he has some good qualities.

My suggestion is to figure out whether his good traits overshadow his bad. I also recommend working on your assertiveness skills. You have the right to refuse a request. Just because he asks, you certainly do not have to agree. If you don't want him to borrow something, don't give it to him. You're in charge of your belonging.

I have an idea that your friend doesn't have a good understanding of the word "No." You can help him gain this bit of knowledge by continuing to repeat the word in his presence and by not giving him what he wants.

You probably can't do much to change his behavior, but you can take charge of your own.

"I have some friends who are into stuff that could get them in serious trouble. They keep trying to get me to do it with them, but so far I've been able to find excuses not to. My parents keep pressuring me to stay away from them, but they're the only friends I have.

"Other kids are scared to hang out with me now because of them. I don't want to get into trouble, but I've got to have somebody to hang out with. What can I do?"

I understand that you feel you're between a rock and a hard place, and it seems as if there are no good choices for you. There is definitely one choice that will have the worst consequences for you — being with these people when they get caught.

Even if you haven't done any of the stuff they're in trouble for, you will be seen as being just as guilty as they are. Who would believe that you're just an innocent bystander every time?

If you have goals and plans for your future, I urge you to make a break with this group. The longer wait, the greater the chances that their luck — and yours — will run out.

Even if you have to spend some lonely time by yourself, it won't compare with the consequences of getting caught with them.

It may take more courage to break with them than it would to keep on taking chances with them. Do the courageous thing.

If you have any questions concerning your teenage years, write Dr. Ann Jarrett, 4-H youth development specialist, Box 9641, Mississippi State, MS 39762.

Participation in child's education difficult with divorce but manageable

Divorced or otherwise separated couples with school-age children should know that involvement in their youngsters' education is going to be tough, but the situation is not hopeless, say two University of Mississippi family and education professors.

Two factors are given: First, a majority of today's school-age children live not with their birth parents but in single-parent or blended families; and secondly, parents' active participation in their children's education increases the chances of better performance.

With that said, divorced individuals who want to participate in the educational experience should be prepared to redouble their efforts.

"It's difficult today for parents with hectic schedules to be involved in their child's education divorced or not; divorce only makes it more difficult," says Dr. Lucy Leslie, an Ole Miss adjunct assistant professor of educational leadership and counselor for Oxford Middle School.

Leslie notes factors that determine the effectiveness of parental involvement, including the age and grade of the child, the school's internal and external communication processes, and the relationship parents have with the school's administration and teachers.

Also, and maybe a more telling factor, is the relationship between the ex-spouses, says Dr. Charles West, an assistant professor of home economics who specializes in family relations.

In a fragmented family, more often than not, the level of involvement a non-custodial parent has with his other children is dictated by the divorced couple's personal relationship. This, West says, applies to education as well as extracurricular activities.

"If Mom and Dad aren't talking that makes it harder for the non-custodial parent to have a relationship with the child," West says. "And how can that parent be involved or even make an effort if they don't know what is going on?"

Indeed, regular communication between school and parents is the hardest, but one of the most constructive steps parents can take, says Leslie. Communication can come in many forms that may or may not involve actual meetings between parents and school representatives, although some personal contact is always preferred.

One simple step each parent can take is to respond to written communications — such as report cards, classwork and tests and messages — when appropriate, says the school counselor.

"It's not as important that parent and teacher have a personal relationship as it is that the teacher simply know the parents are aware of what is happening at school."

Still, Leslie recommends that divorced or divorcing couples meet with a school counselor or teacher to advise them of their family situation. Doing so will assist teachers and counselors in planning their communications with parents.

At Oxford Middle School, for example, every week teachers send home with each student a folder containing graded assignments and other messages, and parents are asked to sign the folder indicating they have reviewed the work. If both parents do not live in the same home or town and the teacher is aware of this, the teacher can allow more time for the return of the folder.

Leslie's personal experiences have shown her that regardless of circumstances, some parents will make every effort to remain active in their child's education. It is simply a matter of establishing priorities, she says. "The child who knows his parents won't look at that folder may or may not care about his performance."

Ultimately, parents' involvement, or lack of it, can affect a child in ways other than grades, West says. "A child who thinks his parents aren't concerned about something as important as his education might think — rightly or wrongly — that says something about how the parents feel about him."

Joys of gardening outweigh the risks

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Many hazards mix with gardening's joys. That's just the way it goes. You take the bad with the good because the good is so very good.

Insect stings are a real threat because bumblebees, honeybees, wasps and yellow jackets often are attracted to garden plants. I'm suffering from a recent wasp sting on the neck, just below my ear lobe.

The wasp passed me while I was doing a little light pruning on the pyracantha climbing the front wall of my home.

Pyracantha's growth needs frequent pruning to keep it in bounds. When it climbs a wall, pyracantha needs pruning almost weekly.

I think wasps love dense shrubbery because it provides the necessary cover for them to hide until an unsuspecting gardener gets close enough to pop.

This wasn't the first time a wasp hit me while pruning this particular plant. It probably won't be the last, though I try to thoroughly scan the shrub before wading in.

Several years ago a saddle back caterpillar popped my hand while I was picking muscadines in the backyard. I never saw what got me until I picked myself up off the ground and went looking for it.

It's hard to believe something so small could knock a grown man to the ground, but it did. Actually, I think I tripped myself in the rush to get off the ladder. That sting hurt for hours even after treatment with assorted home and commercial remedies.

As a kid I used to catch honeybees in my bare hands until one let me know it didn't like it. I think mom's remedy then was a baking soda paste.

Fire ants and ticks are additional hazards often encountered while gardening, and I've run into both this year already. A few weeks ago I even got hit on the hand by a carpenter bee that had tunneled into the handle of the shovel I was using.

in Mississippi
Gardens

Gardening hazards aren't limited to insect stings. There's always poison ivy that shows up unannounced from some bird-dropped seeds. Last fall I got mixed up with an attractive, flowering plant called Mexican sage that happens to be covered with millions of tiny hairs. It took about 10 minutes to get the plant tied up and about a month to get rid of the rash that developed up and down my arms.

Mowing grass is another hazard for me and is guaranteed to bring on a spell of about 15 sneezes.

Several years ago, while helping a coworker with a corn project, I went into a field of corn in full tassel. Three days later the swelling, redness, blisters and itching in my eyes finally quit.

Garden tools are also a real hazard. Many of us know someone who has had a lawn mower-related accident. Generally, it's a hand or foot injury. This spring a friend pruned a finger along with the shrubbery. He was trimming with a pair of hand shears.

I experienced a nasty cut this spring while grafting some red-buds. Earlier this year, a friend almost left four fingers on the ground while attempting to make a graft. His hand was in a cast for four months while healing.

If this isn't enough to keep you out of the garden, years ago I gave myself a hernia and wound up in the hospital for surgery as a result of digging and moving a worthless shrub I wouldn't have in the yard now.

What is my point to this catalog of garden mishaps? Be careful while working in the garden. Extra care can prevent personal injury or injury to others.

Attracting butterflies with plants

Butterflies and Frances Welden go together. For more years than she can remember, Frances has been interested in butterflies, how they live and how to "grow" them.

"It is really easy when you know how. I've had many years of fun just planting plants for butterflies and watching them in the garden," she said.

On Saturday, Aug. 26 at 2 p.m. in the Crosby Arboretum's Visitor Center in Picayune, Welden will share her love and personal knowledge of butterflies in an illustrated talk.

Since butterflies feed on specific plants, participants will have an opportunity to learn which plants attract individual butterfly species. Since not all butterflies feed on crops, participants can learn during this fun program which caterpillars to squash and which to spare. The public is invited.

Please call (601) 799-2811 for reservations. Members of the Arboretum will be charged a $5 fee. Non-members will be charged $8.

The Crosby Arboretum is located on Ridge Road in Picayune, (I-59 at Exit 4).
